LONDON. Aug. 26 .- There is now no doub that cholera has at last entered England The disease was brought here by the steamer Gemma, which arrived at Gravesend yester day from Hamburg.

It was reported that the steamer was in fected, but the authorities, after examining the passengers, allowed them to land. A fe hours after two allens who had arrived or the Germa were taken sick. They were at once removed to the hopital at Gravesend, where the doctors pronounced their malady

Sent Back to Sea with Suspects.

To-day the steamer Laura, plying between Lamburg and Lynn-Regis, an English port on the Great Ouse, nine miles from the North Sea, arrived at Lynn. She was boarded by suspects on board.

The vessel was at once ordered to put back to sea.

The officers and passengers protested against such summary treatment, but the health officers were obdurate and positively refused to let a single person land from the steamer.

Health Board Methods to Prevent Chol-

The alarm felt over the possibility that the Asiatic cholera epidemic, now prevalent in Europe, may reach this country is not abating. Every day the cable brings reports of the continued spread of the disease, particularly at those ports which have direct steamship communication with the United States and those have been followed up by redoubled activity on the part of the health authorities ard off the danger of the pestilence.

It is now acknowledged by the authorities at Hamburg that the discase which has made its appearance there is true Asiatic cholers and the same is true at Antwerp, where the epidemic has made alarming inroads since it oke out a lew days ago.

At Antwerp a total of one-fourth of all the lents who have been taken to hospitals have died within a very short time, and in est cases the disease has assumed its most alignant form.

The terror is so great in both Hamburg and bers. It is believed that the disease was in troduced there by emigrants from Hussis an the East, and the most severe quaranting regulations have been established. Even at Bertin it is feared that cholera has been introduced, and seventy deaths have oc. curred there within the past twenty-four hours which have excited much suspicion. Health Board Ready to Meet It.
